

DR. M'GLYNN WILL LECTURE.

Mgr. Satoli May Grant Him a Roving Commission.

The Reluctant Priest Will Speak at Asbury Park and Chicago.

The interesting question as to what Rev. Dr. Edward McGlynn intends to do in the future, now that he has returned from his Roman and Western trips, having complied with the Papal mandate, is fairly answered by himself.

Through the columns of "The World" to day Dr. McGlynn tells the public that he expects soon to become the old land-tax theorist from the picture platform, and preliminary to his work as lecturer he will speak on invitation at Asbury Park and before the Congress of Religious in Chicago next month.

Where he intends to locate or under what Bishop's jurisdiction he will live he does not state, but it seems quite likely he will be invested with a sort of roving commission, in order to employ him as a lecturer.

Dr. McGlynn had just accepted an invitation from Rev. Edward S. Young to address a meeting at Asbury Park for the benefit of poor children when he was seen by a "World" reporter. He said that the subject of his Asbury Park lecture would in all probability be, "The Church and Its Relation to Economic Questions," and this subject would in all probability be the text of his two lectures next month.

His views on this subject had been pronounced consistent with Catholic doctrine by Mr. McGlynn, and he logic, and "although some people thought that the single tax was contrary to the Catholic faith," the Papal decretal did not mention.

Dr. McGlynn said that parts of his old lecture on the single-tax question might be used again in his Chicago address.

"The Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man" since he went away from this city several months ago, and in all kinds of ways, the Park Department was made the recipient of congratulations from Rev. W. Huntington, the Episcopate monk.

Speaking of his visit to the World's Fair in Chicago, the doctor considered that it was an embarrassment of riches, but he really did not say much in public, and he will be asked to speak to Mr. Satoli. Dr. McGlynn denied that he ever made such a statement, and begged him not to discuss it in regard to his name in that regard.

"I am quoted as saying that I am going to see Delegate Satoli," said Dr. McGlynn. "I am not going to say nothing, but who can tell what the future may bring forth? The delegate is now in San Francisco."

Dr. McGlynn denied published interviews in which he is alleged to have referred to the reinstatement of St. Ursula, his own reinstatement in St. Ursula, and the Health Department of his birthplace, Bishop and added:

"Certainly said nothing of the kind. I declined to express any opinion about the matter, and my friends and I said nothing about it."

I said nothing about Archbishop Corrigan or Delegate Satoli or His Holiness. The talk about my being made a bishop is absurd. I have never been a bishop, and I have not been suddenly struck in insane, at least I am not aware of it."

Bishop McDonnell is in Rochester with Arthur Hartnett.

The Rev. John M. Hartnett, of St. John's College, Brooklyn, is quoted as saying that he did not think Dr. McGlynn would be allowed to speak to Mr. Satoli.

I said nothing about Archbishop Corrigan or Delegate Satoli or His Holiness. The talk about my being made a bishop is absurd. I have never been a bishop, and I have not been suddenly struck in insane, at least I am not aware of it."

As far as I am concerned, the position of the guard was getting worse, the strength was scarcely given to his task, and in order to hold his heavy and squirming burden to better advantage, he climbed up on the top of the platform to sit between the two straits of road between Bleecker and Grand street.

The stretch of road between Bleecker and Grand street is the longest on the whole elevated system downtown. It is also a down grade, and is a very high rate of speed is always kept off, and the speed and vibration of the train increasing every instant. It seemed as if the guard could not hold the man or be dragged by him off the platform.

Finally another passenger went to the platform and called the bell-rope. The gate was then opened, and the old man, then aged 120, got his life out of the train, and he will try to get it again. There is much to be said at the fair, he thought, powerfully interested in man, and the single-taxer will be at a loss to even begin to describe its worth.

Referring to a published statement that he intended to act as his own attorney, Dr. McGlynn said, "I may not be able to tell what the future may bring forth? The delegate is now in San Francisco."

Dr. McGlynn denied published interviews in which he is alleged to have referred to the reinstatement of St. Ursula, his own reinstatement in St. Ursula, and the Health Department of his birthplace, Bishop and added:

"Certainly said nothing of the kind. I declined to express any opinion about the matter, and my friends and I said nothing about it."

I said nothing about Archbishop Corrigan or Delegate Satoli or His Holiness. The talk about my being made a bishop is absurd. I have never been a bishop, and I have not been suddenly struck in insane, at least I am not aware of it."

Bishop McDonnell is in Rochester with Arthur Hartnett.

The Rev. John M. Hartnett, of St. John's College, Brooklyn, is quoted as saying that he did not think Dr. McGlynn would be allowed to speak to Mr. Satoli.

I said nothing about Archbishop Corrigan or Delegate Satoli or His Holiness. The talk about my being made a bishop is absurd. I have never been a bishop, and I have not been suddenly struck in insane, at least I am not aware of it."

As far as I am concerned, the position of the guard was getting worse, the strength was scarcely given to his task, and in order to hold his heavy and squirming burden to better advantage, he climbed up on the top of the platform to sit between the two straits of road between Bleecker and Grand street.

The stretch of road between Bleecker and Grand street is the longest on the whole elevated system downtown. It is also a down grade, and is a very high rate of speed is always kept off, and the speed and vibration of the train increasing every instant. It seemed as if the guard could not hold the man or be dragged by him off the platform.

Finally another passenger went to the platform and called the bell-rope. The gate was then opened, and the old man, then aged 120, got his life out of the train, and he will try to get it again. There is much to be said at the fair, he thought, powerfully interested in man, and the single-taxer will be at a loss to even begin to describe its worth.

Referring to a published statement that he intended to act as his own attorney, Dr. McGlynn said, "I may not be able to tell what the future may bring forth? The delegate is now in San Francisco."

Dr. McGlynn denied published interviews in which he is alleged to have referred to the reinstatement of St. Ursula, his own reinstatement in St. Ursula, and the Health Department of his birthplace, Bishop and added:

"Certainly said nothing of the kind. I declined to express any opinion about the matter, and my friends and I said nothing about it."

I said nothing about Archbishop Corrigan or Delegate Satoli or His Holiness. The talk about my being made a bishop is absurd. I have never been a bishop, and I have not been suddenly struck in insane, at least I am not aware of it."

Bishop McDonnell is in Rochester with Arthur Hartnett.

The Rev. John M. Hartnett, of St. John's College, Brooklyn, is quoted as saying that he did not think Dr. McGlynn would be allowed to speak to Mr. Satoli.

I said nothing about Archbishop Corrigan or Delegate Satoli or His Holiness. The talk about my being made a bishop is absurd. I have never been a bishop, and I have not been suddenly struck in insane, at least I am not aware of it."

As far as I am concerned, the position of the guard was getting worse, the strength was scarcely given to his task, and in order to hold his heavy and squirming burden to better advantage, he climbed up on the top of the platform to sit between the two straits of road between Bleecker and Grand street.

The stretch of road between Bleecker and Grand street is the longest on the whole elevated system downtown. It is also a down grade, and is a very high rate of speed is always kept off, and the speed and vibration of the train increasing every instant. It seemed as if the guard could not hold the man or be dragged by him off the platform.

Finally another passenger went to the platform and called the bell-rope. The gate was then opened, and the old man, then aged 120, got his life out of the train, and he will try to get it again. There is much to be said at the fair, he thought, powerfully interested in man, and the single-taxer will be at a loss to even begin to describe its worth.

Referring to a published statement that he intended to act as his own attorney, Dr. McGlynn said, "I may not be able to tell what the future may bring forth? The delegate is now in San Francisco."

Dr. McGlynn denied published interviews in which he is alleged to have referred to the reinstatement of St. Ursula, his own reinstatement in St. Ursula, and the Health Department of his birthplace, Bishop and added:

"Certainly said nothing of the kind. I declined to express any opinion about the matter, and my friends and I said nothing about it."

I said nothing about Archbishop Corrigan or Delegate Satoli or His Holiness. The talk about my being made a bishop is absurd. I have never been a bishop, and I have not been suddenly struck in insane, at least I am not aware of it."

Bishop McDonnell is in Rochester with Arthur Hartnett.

The Rev. John M. Hartnett, of St. John's College, Brooklyn, is quoted as saying that he did not think Dr. McGlynn would be allowed to speak to Mr. Satoli.

I said nothing about Archbishop Corrigan or Delegate Satoli or His Holiness. The talk about my being made a bishop is absurd. I have never been a bishop, and I have not been suddenly struck in insane, at least I am not aware of it."

As far as I am concerned, the position of the guard was getting worse, the strength was scarcely given to his task, and in order to hold his heavy and squirming burden to better advantage, he climbed up on the top of the platform to sit between the two straits of road between Bleecker and Grand street.

The stretch of road between Bleecker and Grand street is the longest on the whole elevated system downtown. It is also a down grade, and is a very high rate of speed is always kept off, and the speed and vibration of the train increasing every instant. It seemed as if the guard could not hold the man or be dragged by him off the platform.

Finally another passenger went to the platform and called the bell-rope. The gate was then opened, and the old man, then aged 120, got his life out of the train, and he will try to get it again. There is much to be said at the fair, he thought, powerfully interested in man, and the single-taxer will be at a loss to even begin to describe its worth.

Referring to a published statement that he intended to act as his own attorney, Dr. McGlynn said, "I may not be able to tell what the future may bring forth? The delegate is now in San Francisco."

Dr. McGlynn denied published interviews in which he is alleged to have referred to the reinstatement of St. Ursula, his own reinstatement in St. Ursula, and the Health Department of his birthplace, Bishop and added:

"Certainly said nothing of the kind. I declined to express any opinion about the matter, and my friends and I said nothing about it."

I said nothing about Archbishop Corrigan or Delegate Satoli or His Holiness. The talk about my being made a bishop is absurd. I have never been a bishop, and I have not been suddenly struck in insane, at least I am not aware of it."

As far as I am concerned, the position of the guard was getting worse, the strength was scarcely given to his task, and in order to hold his heavy and squirming burden to better advantage, he climbed up on the top of the platform to sit between the two straits of road between Bleecker and Grand street.

The stretch of road between Bleecker and Grand street is the longest on the whole elevated system downtown. It is also a down grade, and is a very high rate of speed is always kept off, and the speed and vibration of the train increasing every instant. It seemed as if the guard could not hold the man or be dragged by him off the platform.

Finally another passenger went to the platform and called the bell-rope. The gate was then opened, and the old man, then aged 120, got his life out of the train, and he will try to get it again. There is much to be said at the fair, he thought, powerfully interested in man, and the single-taxer will be at a loss to even begin to describe its worth.

Referring to a published statement that he intended to act as his own attorney, Dr. McGlynn said, "I may not be able to tell what the future may bring forth? The delegate is now in San Francisco."

Dr. McGlynn denied published interviews in which he is alleged to have referred to the reinstatement of St. Ursula, his own reinstatement in St. Ursula, and the Health Department of his birthplace, Bishop and added:

"Certainly said nothing of the kind. I declined to express any opinion about the matter, and my friends and I said nothing about it."

I said nothing about Archbishop Corrigan or Delegate Satoli or His Holiness. The talk about my being made a bishop is absurd. I have never been a bishop, and I have not been suddenly struck in insane, at least I am not aware of it."

As far as I am concerned, the position of the guard was getting worse, the strength was scarcely given to his task, and in order to hold his heavy and squirming burden to better advantage, he climbed up on the top of the platform to sit between the two straits of road between Bleecker and Grand street.

The stretch of road between Bleecker and Grand street is the longest on the whole elevated system downtown. It is also a down grade, and is a very high rate of speed is always kept off, and the speed and vibration of the train increasing every instant. It seemed as if the guard could not hold the man or be dragged by him off the platform.

Finally another passenger went to the platform and called the bell-rope. The gate was then opened, and the old man, then aged 120, got his life out of the train, and he will try to get it again. There is much to be said at the fair, he thought, powerfully interested in man, and the single-taxer will be at a loss to even begin to describe its worth.

Referring to a published statement that he intended to act as his own attorney, Dr. McGlynn said, "I may not be able to tell what the future may bring forth? The delegate is now in San Francisco."

Dr. McGlynn denied published interviews in which he is alleged to have referred to the reinstatement of St. Ursula, his own reinstatement in St. Ursula, and the Health Department of his birthplace, Bishop and added:

"Certainly said nothing of the kind. I declined to express any opinion about the matter, and my friends and I said nothing about it."

I said nothing about Archbishop Corrigan or Delegate Satoli or His Holiness. The talk about my being made a bishop is absurd. I have never been a bishop, and I have not been suddenly struck in insane, at least I am not aware of it."

As far as I am concerned, the position of the guard was getting worse, the strength was scarcely given to his task, and in order to hold his heavy and squirming burden to better advantage, he climbed up on the top of the platform to sit between the two straits of road between Bleecker and Grand street.

The stretch of road between Bleecker and Grand street is the longest on the whole elevated system downtown. It is also a down grade, and is a very high rate of speed is always kept off, and the speed and vibration of the train increasing every instant. It seemed as if the guard could not hold the man or be dragged by him off the platform.

Finally another passenger went to the platform and called the bell-rope. The gate was then opened, and the old man, then aged 120, got his life out of the train, and he will try to get it again. There is much to be said at the fair, he thought, powerfully interested in man, and the single-taxer will be at a loss to even begin to describe its worth.

Referring to a published statement that he intended to act as his own attorney, Dr. McGlynn said, "I may not be able to tell what the future may bring forth? The delegate is now in San Francisco."

Dr. McGlynn denied published interviews in which he is alleged to have referred to the reinstatement of St. Ursula, his own reinstatement in St. Ursula, and the Health Department of his birthplace, Bishop and added:

"Certainly said nothing of the kind. I declined to express any opinion about the matter, and my friends and I said nothing about it."

I said nothing about Archbishop Corrigan or Delegate Satoli or His Holiness. The talk about my being made a bishop is absurd. I have never been a bishop, and I have not been suddenly struck in insane, at least I am not aware of it."

As far as I am concerned, the position of the guard was getting worse, the strength was scarcely given to his task, and in order to hold his heavy and squirming burden to better advantage, he climbed up on the top of the platform to sit between the two straits of road between Bleecker and Grand street.

The stretch of road between Bleecker and Grand street is the longest on the whole elevated system downtown. It is also a down grade, and is a very high rate of speed is always kept off, and the speed and vibration of the train increasing every instant. It seemed as if the guard could not hold the man or be dragged by him off the platform.

Finally another passenger went to the platform and called the bell-rope. The gate was then opened, and the old man, then aged 120, got his life out of the train, and he will try to get it again. There is much to be said at the fair, he thought, powerfully interested in man, and the single-taxer will be at a loss to even begin to describe its worth.

Referring to a published statement that he intended to act as his own attorney, Dr. McGlynn said, "I may not be able to tell what the future may bring forth? The delegate is now in San Francisco."

Dr. McGlynn denied published interviews in which he is alleged to have referred to the reinstatement of St. Ursula, his own reinstatement in St. Ursula, and the Health Department of his birthplace, Bishop and added:

"Certainly said nothing of the kind. I declined to express any opinion about the matter, and my friends and I said nothing about it."

I said nothing about Archbishop Corrigan or Delegate Satoli or His Holiness. The talk about my being made a bishop is absurd. I have never been a bishop, and I have not been suddenly struck in insane, at least I am not aware of it."

As far as I am concerned, the position of the guard was getting worse, the strength was scarcely given to his task, and in order to hold his heavy and squirming burden to better advantage, he climbed up on the top of the platform to sit between the two straits of road between Bleecker and Grand street.

The stretch of road between Bleecker and Grand street is the longest on the whole elevated system downtown. It is also a down grade, and is a very high rate of speed is always kept off, and the speed and vibration of the train increasing every instant. It seemed as if the guard could not hold the man or be dragged by him off the platform.

Finally another passenger went to the platform and called the bell-rope. The gate was then opened, and the old man, then aged 120, got his life out of the train, and he will try to get it again. There is much to be said at the fair, he thought, powerfully interested in man, and the single-taxer will be at a loss to even begin to describe its worth.

Referring to a published statement that he intended to act as his own attorney, Dr. McGlynn said, "I may not be able to tell what the future may bring forth? The delegate is now in San Francisco."

Dr. McGlynn denied published interviews in which he is alleged to have referred to the reinstatement of St. Ursula, his own reinstatement in St. Ursula, and the Health Department of his birthplace, Bishop and added:

"Certainly said nothing of the kind. I declined to express any opinion about the matter, and my friends and I said nothing about it."

I said nothing about Archbishop Corrigan or Delegate Satoli or His Holiness. The talk about my being made a bishop is absurd. I have never been a bishop, and I have not been suddenly struck in insane, at least I am not aware of it."